Background & Management

Meta Writing & Education Services is owned and managed by Rosanna Mattingly, whose work is grounded in more than 25 years of professional experience in the fields of writing, science, and education. Her formal education and training include research in the ecological sciences (MS, Michigan State University, and PhD, Oregon State University) and teaching certification in Biology and Mathematics. Rosanna brings relevant skill and expertise in science and science writing, substantive and developmental editing, project development and management, graphic design, and curriculum development to every writing project.

Rosanna is committed to lifelong learning and exploring our profound connections with the natural world. She has deep respect for the creative process found at the heart of each aspect of her work with clients.

A meta was the guidepost placed at either end of an oval racetrack during Roman times. As such, the meta helped guide charioteers through the chaos they found when making turns while racing to the finish line. The naming of Meta Writing & Education Services is based on definitions of meta that relate to goal as well as definitions that include along with and beyond.

Meta Writing & Education Services supports and guides clients in reaching the goals they have set for their agencies, for their organizations, and for themselves. Our work is along with clients in helping move writing projects beyond to reach their full potential.
